

POLICE SET TRAP IN MURDER PLOT FOR INSURANCE

Man and Sister Charged with Planning the Death of Brother-in-Law.

PAID HOBO $50 TO DO IT.

Feared Intended Victim Was About to Wed Again, It Is Alleged.

A very nervous man and a semi-hysterical woman, both of them pale and sick, sat in widely separated cells of the New Brighton Jail to-day, too badly frightened to eat the food that was brought to them.

The prisoners were George Carmie and his sister, Miss Marion Carmie, members of an old and reputable Staten Island family.

The alleged crime for which they must answer is a unique one. They are charged with plotting to murder their brother-in-law, Frederick Hulse, for the sake of $15,000 in life insurance, because they feared he meant to marry a young woman of Jersey City and transfer the policy to her.

The story of how the plot was betrayed by the two seeming confederates of the pair, one a policeman in disguise, and the other a former seaman in the navy, makes a story fit for a chapter in a Nick Carter novel.

Ways and Means Discussed.

It is alleged that one by one various plans for taking the prospective victim's life were discussed in a calm, matter-of-fact, business-like fashion by the spectacled little woman and her no-do-well brother. The two who betrayed them to the police say that once gas tubing was bought for the purpose of killing Hulse with gas as he slept. Then the scheme of drowning him in a bathtub had serious consideration. Finally the simple expedient of sand-bagging Hulse was decided on, so the policeman and the ex-soldier say.

Detective Smith took the brother and sister to-day to Manhattan Police Headquarters and had them photographed. On their return they were arraigned in the New Brighton Police Court. There Magistrate Crook committed George Carmie to jail without bail until the preliminary hearing on Sept. 10. He fixed bond for the woman at $2,000. It was furnished by James M. Clute, of the Burlee Shipbuilding Company, in which the wealthy brother of the prisoners, William Carmie, is an officer and stockholder. William Carmie has engaged Attorney J. Harry Tierman, of Stapleton, to defend him.

Miss Carmie said to the reporters as she left the court:

"I am innocent. I know nothing of any plot."

"I'm willing to stand for anything that comes of this arrest," boasted George Carmie. "I'll take all the blame. But you'll see they won't be able to prove anything."

From William Carmie, the rich brother, it was learned that George only returned a few months ago from the West, where he had led a wandering life. He made his home at No. 362 Furman street, Brooklyn, frequently going to Staten Island to spend a day or two with his sister. William saw little of him on those occasions and says he knows nothing of George's habits.

It Was Nothing Compared With His Own, He Tells Ivins.

The investigation of the city's transit facilities by the Public Service Commission was continued to-day in the Aldermanic Chamber of the City Hall, with Chairman Wilcox presiding.

Mr. Bryan, president of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company, was continued in the witness chair.

In a passage between the lawyers Mr. Ivins remarked that Mr. Auerbach's admission to have rated pretty well. The admission was to a fee of $2,000, brought out in the testimony yesterday, as paid to Mr. Auerbach at the time the Manhattan was acquired by the Interborough.

This item was charged to the equipment account, and, as Mr. Ivins intimated, the inference was that the city would be called upon to pay this when it buys the subway.

Referring to Mr. Auerbach's fee of $2,000, Mr. Nicol said:

"I regard that fee as very small. It was nothing compared with mine."

Mr. Ivins, turning to Mr. Nicol, said: "Do you itemize your bills?"

Mr. Nicol with an air that was more than simple dignity—in fact, both solemn and stern—replied:

"I do not."

The estimated cost of the Belmont tunnel was $1,000,000, for work to be done by the Belmont Contracting Company, that is, Mr. Wilcox wanted to know the names of the stockholders of the Belmont company, but Mr. Bryan could not tell him.

Mr. Ivins wanted to know if an engineer detailed by the Commission would be permitted to inspect the Belmont tunnel.

"I have no objection," he was taken by the newspaper men through," said Mr. Bryan.

Newspaper men don't know as much as engineers," said Mr. Ivins.

"You can go through with me, Mr. Ivins," said Mr. Nicol, "as much as about it as you would, I suppose," said Mr. Ivins.

Then Mr. Ivins shifted to the question of meeting the transit demands on the Subway and "L" roads.

Mr. Bryan said that from 60 to 70 per cent of the total number of passengers on the "L" are carried in three out of the twenty-four hours—an hour and one-half closing the doors. In fact, it is the evening.

Mr. Bryan admitted that traffic was simply crowded out during the non-rush hours on the "L."

Towards the end of the session there was a very animated discussion between Mr. Nicol and Mr. Ivins as to the powers of the Commission. Mr. Nicol said that the Commission had no power to order the closing of the doors.

Mr. Nicol replied that he had strong doubts, but he thought the Commission had already done many things that it had no power to do.

Mr. Bryan said that there were more injuries caused by the few open cars on the Third Avenue "L" line than by the 1,400 other cars operated. He also said:

"In the places where they have cars with doors at the middle, they don't have to deal with the sort of people that we have. I don't know how many times I have seen people come down the stairs three steps at a time, and out their feet in the doorway while closing the doors. In fact, I would take an order from the commission to induce me to put on that style of cars, absolutely dangerous."

Report of Receiver for Electrical Workers Shows Funds Have Been Mishandled.

The report of W. J. K. Kenney, receiver for the New York Electrical Workers' Union, was filed in the office of the County Clerk to-day. It declares that thousands of dollars have been taken by the officers and other members of the union, contrary to the laws of the State of New York. Of these officers the receiver says:

"It seems to be useless to pursue them in the civil courts. They are now depending upon what they can get out of day. Judgment against them would be to no purpose."

Receiver Kenney suggests that a meeting of the union be called for the second Wednesday in next month to elect a new set of officers and directors.
